Information Security

RBS monitors all e-mails containing Bank specific information to external sources. It is against the Bank's Information Security Policy to send information concerning or belonging to the Bank to your personal e-mail address, even for the purpose of working from home. Where you do work from home, an RBS approved remote access solution can be requested via your Line Manager.

Please be aware that system alerts are generated when there is a potential breach of the policy. These alerts result in an incident being raised and could constitute a breach of the Bank's Code of Conduct. Information is one of the Bank's most important business assets and it's vital that this is protected at all times. The Bank's Information Security Policy Standard is therefore designed to protect the RBS information and systems. If you have any questions please direct these to your Line Manager.

I confirm that I have read the above from the Information Security Policy and agree to adhere to such
